LEARN MORE

Students in the O&M program will complete the California Clinical Rehabilitative Services credential and MA degree concurrently and are eligible to apply for national certification. The O&M program prepares specialists to teach independent movement, travel skills, and concepts to infants, children, and adults who are blind or visually impaired. Students learn to assess skills and provide systematic and sequential instruction in orientation and mobility to diverse learners, including students with additional disabilities. Candidates are prepared to teach students the skills necessary to travel safely

Starting salaries for O&M Specialists typically range between $50,000 – $64,000 in California. Private contract fees commonly range between $45 to $125 per hour.
